"The Future of Further Education"

Friday 22 March 2013

Speaker: Christine Rose

Christine Rose is a well established and highly respected consultant and trainer. Nationally recognised as an expert in equality and diversity (E&D), she specialises in supporting organisations in the learning and skills sector to improve E&D practice. She works closely with organisations such as the AoC, LSIS, Ofsted, LSN, NIACE, ACER and the Equality and Human Rights Commission.

She is the author of a range of national guidance publications. For example, she has produced national guidance on disability disclosure and consent, and on carrying out risk assessments with disabled learners. She is one of the main authors of guidance for the education sector, written on behalf of the Disability Rights Commission (DRC), and launched by the DRC in August 2007. She has produced, on behalf of LSIS, guidance for governors on equality and diversity, and is in the process of producing a briefing on the Equality Act 2010. She has carried out research on behalf of the Equality and Human Rights Commission on best practice in meeting public sector duties.

Christine is a former senior manager and a regular platform speaker and workshop leader for national, regional and local conferences.
